aftershocks. earthquake He announced that 3 of the earthquakes had magnitudes above 6 and 24 of them had magnitudes between 5 and 6.

Oktaý, who stated that they continue to provide internal and external contributions to search and rescue activities, said, "The number is currently 21,600. Of course, those coming from abroad are also included. Our President also announced that all AFAD teams and civil society organizations are in the field. With those who will come, we see search and rescue teams from 66 countries in the field today. 4,931 of them are actually in the field and there are about 1,756 who will come. We dispatch them to the field as they arrive. When we look at the total number of personnel in the field, it is 103,800."

Oktaý, stating that the work is currently concentrated in some provinces, said, "When we look at Kilis, Gaziantep, Adana, Şanlıurfa and to some extent Malatya, we have now relaxed these provinces a bit more compared to our other provinces in terms of search and rescue activities, in a way that we can shift the teams here to the other side. When we look at the provinces we are currently focusing on, Adıyaman, Hatay, Kahramanmaraş and Malatya are included in this."

'THE NUMBER IN TEMPORARY SHELTER AREAS HAS EXCEEDED 500 THOUSAND'

Oktaý, who also provided information on shelter services, said, "We have created a capacity of around 1 million 60 thousand outside disaster areas. We encourage those who want to go outside the disaster area. Addresses for places to go have been determined and provincial governorships have also been instructed. The number of citizens in temporary shelter areas has exceeded 500 thousand."

Oktaý reported that there were no problems that would affect the field in terms of transportation and that there were no closed roads.

Oktaý, who stated that they were taking precautions regarding natural gas in disaster areas, said, "We have solved the problem regarding the main transmission lines regarding natural gas as of this evening. We will start providing natural gas to the entire disaster area in a controlled manner. We will start providing natural gas one by one and gradually in order to prevent secondary disasters."

Fuat Oktaý, regarding the posts made by the Republican People's Party Chairman Kemal Kılıçdaroğlu on social media, said, "We opened our doors to those who wanted to meet with us and shared all the information. Shame on those who want to go out and do politics over so many people after leaving here. 'We are building the airport, whoever is arresting should arrest them'. An extremely low-level challenge. There is nothing more ugly than doing politics with very simple allegations. Who are you, what do you think you are? If the state cannot build an airport, will a municipality build it?"

Construction machineryearthquakeIn response to claims that the construction equipment was not allowed into the area, Oktaý said, "They were saying a moment ago that they were leaving the construction equipment outside, that is a complete lie. Can construction equipment be left outside? There are 5,500 construction equipment inside and the construction equipment coming from outside is planned according to where it will be in the city. We are not in a position to bring it into the city and make plans there."

Oktaý, reminding that the work at Hatay Airport is carried out by the State Airports Authority, said, "All work at Hatay Airport is initiated by the State Airports Authority. There, construction equipment, including Ankara Metropolitan Municipality vehicles, are directed to the airport to carry debris, and we are the ones directing them. They go and collect debris with a few vehicles and say, 'We are building Hatay Airport, whoever is arresting them should arrest them'. Shame on you. I have nothing to say."

report seriously. If there are those who record an event somewhere and try to trigger an event in other dimensions by taking it out of their own media, we will do what is necessary. If there is something related to disinformation, we will do what is necessary, is it possible not to do it? Today is not a day for politics, it is a day for unity."

'THERE IS A TECHNICAL PROBLEM'

In response to a question about accessing the social networking site Twitter during the day, he said, "We are currently managing the disaster here. We already have relevant institutions regarding it. You can evaluate it together with those institutions. From what I have learned, I think they had some technical problems. They will make the necessary explanations."

Regarding the number of citizens rescued from the rubble, Oktay said, "We shared the information about those rescued from the rubble very carefully. We are now working on this as a whole. It will be a much higher number than we previously announced. I estimate that those rescued from the rubble are not less than 20 thousand as of now."

In response to the question of whether the names of those who died in the earthquake would be shared, Oktay said, "We are extremely sensitive about the names of those who died. We share confirmed information. Even if we make a single mistake, the burden of this is huge. We can consider sharing the list of those who died, but we also need to evaluate this in terms of social psychology."

'WE ARE WORKING ON THE OPENING OF TWO BORDER GATES TO SYRIA'

Foreign Minister Mevlüt Çavuşoğlu, who responded to a question about whether or not there will be crossing points for the delivery of aid to earthquake victims in Syria, said, "Cilvegözü Border Gate is currently open within the framework of the United Nations Security Council. However, there is also damage on some roads on the Syrian side. Due to that damage, there are some difficulties in terms of our and international aid. For this reason, we are working on opening two more gates. Since this is a humanitarian situation, we are also working to open these gates from points controlled by the Syrian regime. We are also providing the necessary support for the incoming aid to reach Syria."
